NUMB. CXLV.

THE London Journal

SATURDAY, May 5. 1722.

To the Author of the London Journal.

SIR,

AFTER all that has been said of Arbitrary Power, and of its hideous Nature and Effects, it will ſtill greatly be, to ſay ſomething more of the Exceſſes which all wife and ſenſible Nations ought to put, and have ever put, upon their Magiſtrates. This is what I have propoſed ſeveral Months ago to do; and this is what I propoſe to do in this Paper and the following.

No preſent Nation in the World ever credited or the ſafe Management, leaſt Money, and ſubſiſted Miniſters of its own Magiſtrates, when it could help doing ſo; and we know of Magiſtrates ever had abſolute Power over any Nation, but they made the Good of its Rule and their own, with Grandeur and ill judg'd Pride. At beſt are the Paſſions of Men quotes there, they will always govern by their Paſſions, and their Paſſions will always ſubſiſt with their Power. And therefore, whenever a whole People, or any Part of them, diſlike the Paſſions of any Man that governs them, he will find his Paſſions oppoſed a whole People, or any Number of them that oppoſe him, and will deſtroy a whole People, or thoſe that oppoſe his Paſſions. This is evident in the cleareſt Inſtances; and the Publick will ever, and inevitably be ſacrificed to private Luſts, when private Luſts governs the Publick. Nothing but Fear and Publick Conſiderations can keep Men within any reaſonable Bounds; and nothing but the Abſence of Fear can let Men at Defiance with Society, and prompt them to oppreſs it. It was therefore well judged of the Spartans Reſort, when they erected an Altar of Fear, or the moſt proper Deity, to reſtrain the wild Ambition of the Kings, and to keep their Kings within the Confines of their Duty.

A Nation has but two Sorts of Diſeaſes to fear, one from their Neighbours, and another from their own Magiſtrates; one is a foreign Diſeaſe more formidable than a Domeſtick, which is the moſt dangerous of the Two, for by being healed or eaſed, and generally during the Cure, it gets by degrees in the Bowels of its Patient, and deſtroys him. Like unto Rankling in a Wound, made with Poiſon, which by Balms, may ſeem cured for a time, but ſtill remains, and diſcovers itſelf in the Cheeks, which being long preparing for them and feeding upon them. Nations and People unable to ſupport Miſeries, have been ſometimes relieved by foreign Invaders. The Jews were relieved by Cyrus, who were Captives to Babylon, and by Titus, who were Rebels to Rome; but when Nations have ſuffered from their own Princes, they have ſeldom found Relief, but by Deſtruction of their Princes, and Deſtruction of their Nations. Thus the Romans were forced to purchaſe the eaſe, and that by Aſſaſſination and Cruelty, and the other Governments of their Tyrannical Princes, and the other Governments of their Tyrannical Princes, reduced them to ſo vaſt Infelicity of enduring Miſeries, and could find no other Remedy of ridding themſelves of them, but by Deſtruction of their Nations.

What has made Italy and the Romans, and other ancient long Inhabitants ſtarving and contemptible Countries, above the Inhabitants of barbarous Nations, but their Governments, and making on the Weakneſs of the Inhabitants, enabled and endeared by their laſt and tyrannical Governors? But they have been made Beaſts by the continued Depreſſions of their miſerable Princes, who have uſed us as they had been Scythes in the Hand of Satan to mow down the Race of Men. There is a certain old Indian Tyrant now living, who, that he has by Bodies Raiſed conquered into a Wilderneſs a Country which Nature has made a Paradiſe, not is not eaſily not ſatiated of his Rapine, but goes on to lick and ſuck the remaining Blood of his Ghaſtly Subjects, and are to his viſiting Seven Akins a Day (a Way he has of compounding with God for being a publick Tyrant to his Creatures) I ſay, his daily Employment; beſides this his devout and impudent Mockery of God, is no ſo conſiſting with his Infidel Miniſtry, which of his Subjects may probably be worth a Hundred Pounds, and how to cheat him or rob him of that Hundred Pounds.

The ſame Grand Prince has now ſcarce any other Pay for his Soldiers, but that of cajoling them directly or grandi his own People: Nor are they ſo for any other Employment, for our Engliſh Regiments would beat Seven of his, tho' now his poſſeſſ Forces, many of them, are placed upon his Frontiers, not to defend him from an Invaſion, a Task they are not equal to, but to keep his wretched Subjects from running away from Tyranny and his Government — a Relief which is however barbarouſly denied them by this old pitiful Tyrant: They muſt ſtay and periſh under him; nor will he ſuffer them to ſeek elſewhere that Support of Life, of which his diabolical Government deprives them at Home; as if when he had rob'd them of their Labour and their Life, he alſo owned their Skins.

There is not upon Earth a Nation, which having had ſuch unreaſonable Magiſtrates, has had ſo much Patience and ſuffering Meekneſs. In truth, where they are much leſſened, it has been often in much as a whole People could do to reſtrain them in their Theft, and to keep them from Violence; and ſuch frequently has been their Propenſity to be lawleſs, that nothing but Violence, and ſometimes ſtarving but a whole Year, could cure them of their Vicious. This Evil has ye Knot to baniſh Princes; Men will never think that have enough which they can take more, nor be content with a Part when they can have the Whole. We are indeed told of ſome Antient Princes, who have been very good Men and no Oppreſſors. But the Nature of their Power rendered their good Qualities uſeleſs, and gave an occaſion to Oppreſſors of others in their Name, and by their Authority, Inſtruments which Princes may themſelves abhor (I diſcourſe in my Terms of Arbitrary Princes upon Earth, under the Eye of Him and One to whom all Men are alike, and who does not like an Earthly Prince ſee Intereſt Tyranny, or Intereſt his Miniſters to be Tyrants, when an Arbitrary Prince has had great Power very generally given to his Court will be, and have been upon Earth, Inſtruments of Tyranny, and Cauſes of great Miſeries and Devaſtations to Nations.

I were, [illegible] that has been [illegible] and gave it to [illegible] Cruelty and Oppreſſion. And if the [illegible] Princes [illegible] Conſiderations [illegible] Nations [illegible] Princes [illegible] Nations [illegible] Princes [illegible] Nations [illegible] Princes

" such scraps of a Mother, (till we Chaunt Snails". Voltaire bids us the Romans for their Pride the lenefcent Titus, but he adds both them the raging and bloody Domitian.

If Julius Cæsar and Augustus had been really Gods, as their Flatterers made them, yet their leaving behind them such a Race of Successors, (who prov'd a Race of Monsters) entitles them to the Name rather of detestable Tyrants to all Posterity. Tiberius, Caligula, Claudius and Nero, were the greatest and bloody Scourges that lascivious Princes ever——whose unrestrain'd Inclinations, which those of Cæsar and Augustus are generally admir'd; have yet Cæsar and Augustus were Moderation compared to their Pride of Mankind: Nor were they so great Bells to worse Cæsar and Augustus, who did much more Mischief, and destroy'd the World more than either Nero or Caligula, besides leaving them no Authority to Kill Posterity.

People rarely think of this, but it is literally true. What! will some say, the gentle Cæsar and the mild Augustus do more Mischief than the wild Caligula and the savage Nero! Yes, they do sure: Nero destroy'd his Thousands, and Cæsar and Augustus their Tenners Thousands; and for Nero we may thank Julius and Augustus. Tiberius, Caligula, Claudius and Nero, took Rome chiefly for the Scene of their Cruelty, and destroy'd many great and good Men, from out of Wantonness, and more out of Jealousy. But Cæsar and Augustus made Rome and the World their Slaughter-house, and destroy'd more great and good Men by far than the other Four, as butchering Members as they were: And as to publick Ruine and general Depopulation, they exceeded them still further. Indeed, as to horrid and diffusive Mischief and Villany, the Difference between them was as great between Jack Straw and a first Grand Monarque. The Truth is, Cæsar and Augustus had Art and great Qualities, which are far from excusing the Evils they did; and their Successors having all their Ambition, but wanting their great Qualities and Dexterities, took the direct Road to Hatred.

An unrestrained Power of one Man, or a few, over all, is such an extravagant Deviation from Reason and Nature, that neither Briareus with his many Hands, nor the Hydra with its numerous Heads, nor the Centaure, half Man and half Beast, were Things more unshapen, monstrous, and frightful: Nor would their Fictions appear more fabulous and improbable, than such Power would to a free People, who never had heard of it before. What could seem to common Sense a wilder Chimæra, than that one Man, not exceed with Features and Endowments different from other Men, should have a hereditary Right from his Blood, or his Pride, or his Madness, to domineer over all Men, and to rule, kill, starve, famish, banish and imprison as many as he pleas'd?

This Power is indeed so monstrous, that it turns Men that have it into Monsters, and therefore the most amiable and unenterprizable Man upon Earth, is not to be trusted with it. Men change with their Stations, and Power of any sort rarely alters them for the better, but on the contrary, has often turn'd every good Man upon a very bad. This shews that Men forbear Evil, chiefly to avoid the ill Consequences of it to themselves, and for want of Opportunity and Temptation; and finding Both in Power, they prove by making use of them, that their Virtue was only Self-love and Fear of Punishment. Thus Men of the best and brightest Characters have often done most Mischief, and by well serving their Country, have been enabled to destroy it: And they were good and evil from one and the same Motive, a Passion for themselves, and their own Security or Glory.

Thus the Houses of the Medicis, by being very good Common-wealths Men, and by serving and obliging almost every Family in Florence, gain'd Credit enough by this their generous Behaviour, to enslave that great and powerful City. Ideo apud imperitos, humanitas vocabatur, quod pars servitutis erat. Paricles, admonish'd the Governors of Athens with great Sollicitancy, but he broke down the Banks of its Liberty, and rul'd arbitrarily all his Days. Agathocles fought heroically for the City of Syracuse, and as heroically against it; and having [illegible] Enemies against their Enemies, he afterwards [illegible] by killing in one great Massacre all the chief and best of them, and by overawing himself Tyrant over all the rest. Marius and Sylla, Pompey and Cæsar, were great and excellent Commanders, and conquer'd many great Kings and Nations: But they ended all this Height of their Valour in their own, and from being very good Soldiers, made themselves Gods, monsters and arbitrary Magistrates.

Most all these great Men, derived from the Good they did, a Capacity of so much more Evil. So that as a Power to do great Goods, does naturally include in it the Opportunity of doing much Evil; so those who are in the Possession of Power, as all Magistrates are, ought always to act under Men as to extremely wrong, and consider Actions Amongst them which Temptation to break them, and many Crimes of Necessity, as to Men good, as it is evidently so to God, when the great Crime in any other Way of Life. For, besides that quoties in Republica Principem offenst, toties religiosa fabrorum Cives; that is, that People are generally severest on Persons in their Magistrates are; there is something extremely inhuman and inhospitable in the Nature of that great Truth; and consequently as it is either'd or betray'd, a Country is happy or unhappy. And when any one Branch of it prefers even all with Impunity, another will soon follow it; and in time it will be considered no longer as a Truth, but as Error.

So dangerous a Thing is an ill Precedent, which is often an Inlet to an endless Train of Mischiefs. And it depend in the Nature of Man, that we subdue our Selves in Wickedness by Examples that cannot be subdued. For Actions at first reckon'd Abhorrent, by being practis'd once or twice become tolerable, and that which was at first esteemed an Exercise, grows by use to be thought but a Pastime. Thus Evil is propagated, and encreas'd, by Repetition, which is a real Aggravation of Evil; and there are certain Regards in Offices, which being long practis'd and by many, are at last reckon'd as sacred as the Truth against which they are committed;——a sufficient reason for providing by great and certain Penalties that none be committed.

I am, SIR,

Your most humble Servant,

CATO.

P. S. I am greatly oblig'd to the Society of Gentlemen at Glasgow, who lately sent me an excellent Letter sign'd Philopatris. I return them my best Thanks for it, and would have publish'd it but for Reasons, which upon recollection they will easily find.

FOREIGN AFFAIRS.

ALthough the Czar's Troops are in Motion in some Parts, yet still are his Designs (as) fear'd as, and like to be (), been he has strictly forbidden his Subjects to write, or discourse about the present Posture of his Affairs. Some Letters mention, that the Duke of Mecklenburg has an Invitation to repair to Petersburg, and that the Czar not only designs to settle him in his Dominions this Summer, but also make Provision for the Duke of Holstein, who 'tis now said is to marry his second Daughter, in Confidence the whereof he is to yield to him all Livonia, and the Reversion of Courland, with the Title of Great Duke. 'Tis advised from Archangel, that that enterprizing Prince is building 60 or 70 Gallies in the White Sea, which some think are designed for an Invasion upon those Parts of Norway, which he accords to his Dominions. ——His Danish Majesty has been employ'd for some Time in reviewing his Troops; and as he purposes very soon to set out for Holstein, he designs to visit his several Garrisons on the Frontiers. His Fleet is ready to put to Sea, and (as it is said) waits only to be join'd by some Ships which they expect from us. ——The Muscovite Minister at Stockholm presses for a speedy Answer to the Czar's Proposals to that Court, which Affair is forms is referred to the Diet of that Kingdom. The Swedes are equipping with great dispatch, 22 Men of War at Carelscrona. ——The States General have given Orders for changing the Garrisons of the Towns as far their Obedience, and according to the List of the Troops employed therein, they consist of 25 Squadrons and 32 Regiments of Foot. Rear Admiral Graave is appointed to command the Squadron which is to act against the Corsairs of Barbary. They are about to publish an Order to prohibit their Subjects taking them Slaves any foreign Service. ——The Difference which has subsisted for some time between the Courts of Vienna and Berlin is at last accommodated. The Imperial Ministers in Sweden and Prussia are very vigilant in order to discover what Steps are taking in their Courts, with relation to the Czar. ——— According to our Advices from Paris, the Regent is going to make great Alterations in the Government of the Finances of that Kingdom. The Difference between the Cardinals and Duke and Peers at the Court, is more likely to be accommodated, the King of Spain having wrote to the Duke of Orleans, that he does not look upon their Quarrels as any Affront to the Council of Regency. The Rising up in Apartments at Versailles requiring more Time than can be first appointed, the King is not likely to be out before the latter End of this Month. ——The Spanish Troops are already dispersed, and great Orders are ready to embark at Barcelona for Italy, where the Infant Don Carlos is suddenly expected. The Gazettes in the Island of Majorca are encouraged and supported, and everything here wears a Face of Security. ——The Great Duke of Tuscany has at last made his Answer to the Emperor's Letters Inquiry, that he has given Orders for the augmenting of his Troops, and reinforcing of his Garrisons about the Sea Coasts, and declared that all Persons that were his Tributaries subject his Orders. He has also written to Ambassadors at all the Courts Protestant. The Pope has received the Letters and Presents made him by the Emperor, and has sent a Body of Troops to be joined with Detachments from the the Garriſons of thoſe Places and Fort Urbain, for the Security of Perouſe and Pignerol, as Fiefs of the Holy See. 'Tis ſaid, the Pope has thought it improper to join in Alliance with France and Spain, with reſpect to the Affairs of Italy. From Conſtantinople we are informed, that the Turkiſh Fleet is already out at Sea, with great Numbers of Land Forces on board it. The Grand Seignor ſtill continues his Preparations of ſending his Son to all the Courts of Europe, in order to make him acquainted with the European Intereſts——But we are uncertain as to the Opening of the Cambray Congreſs, and there are daily wanting Some who inform us, that it never will be ſo; but we are in the dark as to what Reaſons they may have for it.

LONDON.

THE 25th of laſt Month there was a General Court of the York Building Company held at Jabez Hall, which was opened with a long Speech from their Governour the Earl of Wilmington, ſetting forth the Advantages that were like to accrue to the Company from their Lead and Coal Mines; and having fully let before them a State of their Affairs, the following Queſtion was put, and Nemine Contradicente carried, viz. That the half Year's Dividend due at Lady-Day laſt, be One and a Half per Cent. to be paid on the 1st of July next. And the Court then broke up with returning Thanks to the Gentlemen in the Direction of their Affairs, for their great Care and Pains in the Management thereof.

The Yarmouth, Britiſh and Ipſwich Guardſhips at Portſmouth are clean'd; but as yet there is no Order to fit them for Sea.

We are informed, that one of the Swiſs Cantons have lately, by their Agents here, purchaſed 40000 l. South-Sea Stock.

A few Nights ago a new born Child, wrapped up in handſome Linnen, was dropt in Hart's Court in Fleet-ſtreet. The Perſon not being diſcovered, the Parish was obliged to keep it: Whereupon one of the Honeſt Churchwardens would needs have it named Moſes Hart; Moſes, in regard this Diſcovery, as he ſaid, bore ſome Reſemblance to that of Moſes where an Infant; and Hart, becauſe it was found in Hart Court; and it is called Moſes Hart accordingly, a Name well known in the Synagogue and Change-Alley.

A Sugar baker's Journyman of this City, who for ſome Time paſt had been very ſweet on the Chamber-Maid, was lately caught by the Cook in her chaſt Embraces. How to ſave the Reputation of Mrs. Abigail, he could not well tell, but knowing the Cook to be a kind and willing Female, he ſoon prevailed on her alſo to taſte of the forbidden Fruit: But although ſhe was then a Party concerned, yet ſuch was her Reſentment to the Chamber-Maid that ſhe could not conceal her Part in this Affair from the Miſtreſs, which ſoon brought out the whole Story.

On Saturday laſt a Soldier living in Tyburn Road was committed to Newgate for killing his Wife, by ſtabbing her in the Belly.

The ſame Day one Thomas Marten, formerly a Shopkeeper in Thames-ſtreet, was examined to Middleſex Goal by Juſtice Wright of Deptford, for ſtealing a Watch at the Red-Lion's near that Place.

We have an Account from Tiverton, in Devonſhire, that they have diſcovered a Coal Mine within a Quarter of a Mile of that Place, which they hope will be of great Uſe to the whole Country. Coals being at preſent a very dear Commodity in thoſe Parts.

On the 9th inſtant the Commiſſioners of his Majeſty's Navy will treat with ſuch perſons as are willing to import Eaſt Country Plank and Maſts Deals for the Service of the Navy.

On Sunday Morning laſt Orders were ſent to Deptford to fit out the Carolina Yacht with all Expedition, his Majeſty deſigning to embark on board her for Holland; but the Day is not yet fix'd for his Departure hence. All the other Yachts are alſo order'd to be ready.

Laſt Week the Royal Prince, and two other Ships belonging to the South-Sea Company, came out of the Docks, and are now Rigging off at Deptford.

One Mr. Prentice, of Middleton, having taken a Houſe at Swadlin, near a Mile from that Town, and digging a Well there, the Firſt Stroke made him, and his Men, to their great Aſtoniſhment,

The Rebellion and Murderous Practices were related twice laſt Week by one Highgate, a Quaker Lawyer.

Laſt Week Mr. Johnſon, a Dutch Merchant in the Port of London, figured on Board a Ship that had been chaced into Yarmouth Road, Calley and Bolney, on the Value of One Thouſand Pounds.

The following is an Account of ſome private Advices received concerning the Plague.

Rome, April 27. Never was an Alarm more groundleſs than that which was at Marſeilles. All parts were very well with them, and they could have had the laſt Account of the Diſtemper among them. Their Trade is ſtill open to all the Ports about Turkiſh, but the neceſſary Orders are given for obſerving them if poſſible.

Avignon April 18. Our Quarantine produces neither ſick nor Dead, which looks as if we were now on the point of a happy Deliverance.

Nice April 18. A Child ſickening in Prey in the Town, and Buboes being found under its Arm-pits, it was carried forthwith to the Infirmary; and all the People that lived in the Houſe with it were put under Quarantine out of Town: But we hope this will end well. From Palm-Sunday to the 15th of April, Monaco was without any ſick; but that Day there fell ill of the Diſtemper a Widow Woman that lived by herſelf in a Houſe out of Town. Menton was likewiſe a long time without a Patient; but on the 15th died there a Valet of Mr. de Prades, who caught the Infection a little before. They are never long without ſome or other ſick at La Canourgue, St. Legier, Gourse and Montauban continue well.

Orange April 20. The Diſtemper ceaſes again here, and we have had this Week Eight ſick or dead.

Toulouſe April 23. Lourmc is the only Place in all the Provinces of the Vivarets that has any ſick; and they are but a Woman and a Child.

Liege April 24. Our Commerce is again opened with Marſeilles for Oyls, Drugs and the like Commodities not ſuſceptible of the Infection, but under ſuch Quarantines as are thought proper by our Chamber of Health, who exert themſelves for the ſafety of this Province.

The Lord Harley is now buying up a Library in which, 'tis ſaid, his Lordſhip will lay out Ten Thouſands Pounds. A very ancient and valuable Bible has been bought for his Uſe, which we hear coſt Thirty Pounds.

We hear from Fawley in Hampſhire, that the Manufacture lately ſet up there for Shags, Snuffs, &c. is carried on with the greateſt Application and Succeſs. The Work it furniſhes to the Poor in all the neighbouring Villages, the Circulation of Money it promotes there, with the other Advantages attending this Undertaking, have put Affairs in the happieſt Poſture they were ever known to be in, in that part of the Country.

The Act of Parliament for the preſent State Lottery appoints the drawing of it to begin on or before the 22d of November.

We hear that Mr. Hawkeſton and his Friends have ſent down a Painter to Haſtings, to draw the Pictures of the two Fiſhermen, who 'tis ſaid refuſed ſuch weighty Bribes at the Election of Members for that Place.

Some of the Directors of the Bank and South-Sea Companies had on Saturday laſt a Meeting at Sir John Ward's Houſe, touching the Ingraftment of South-Sea Stock into the Bank, and a Reconciliation between the two Companies, which it is thought (and greatly hoped) will be effected; but the Particulars are kept very private.

Some Perſons which belong to Mr. Hill, were on Monday taken into Cuſtody, for being concerned in the Journal of Saturday laſt, which contains indecent Reflections on the late Earl of Sunderland.

The Officers and Companies of his Majeſty's Ships undermention'd, that were at the Taking of the Spaniſh Ships in the Mediterranean, will be paid their Prize Money at the Office in George-Yard, on Little Tower-Hill, in the following manner, viz.

On Tuesday last was Sold by Auction, at the Sign of the Rose, the Houshold Goods, Plate, and Linnen of Sir Theodore Janssen, Bart. being the Furniture of his House in Hanover Square; as also that of Arthur Ingram's, Esq; in York Buildings.——As this Sale began (as being the first great Concourse after the Appointed who were employed by the Trustees to appraise and approve their and other Dutchess Goods, being present, and buying as well as others, many said it was unreasonable they should be permitted to bid or buy any Part, and were for excluding them the Room; but the Argument on the other side, (that the more Bidders there were, the better it would be for the Sale) prevail'd. Sir Theodore's Son, and two of his Daughters were present and bought several of the Goods. Mr. Ingram beg'd to buy his Family Pictures, and did so, but at double the Value they were appriz'd.

The young Princesses are in a very fair Way of Recovery.

For the further Encouragement of the Importation of Naval Stores, all Persons who within 21 Years from the 24th of June 1721, shall import from any of his Majesty's Plantations in America, in any Ship which may lawfully Trade thither, any sort of Wood or Timber, wrought or unwrought; any Goods called Lumber, as Deals, Timber, Balks, Hoops, Ebonery, Wood, Barrel Staves, Oak, Plank, and Wainscot, (except Masts Yards and Bow Sprits) may import the same Custom free.

'Tis believed by some of the chief Proprietors in the South-Sea, that the Directors have in Cash about 1,200,000 l. We strange therefore they do not pay their Dividend Warrants, and their Bonds, which go at Interest, and thereby save so much Money to the Company. 'Tis talk'd, that some of the Proprietors design to call a General Court, in order to enquire into the Conduct of the present Directors.

The East-India Sale that is adjourned to the 10th Instant, already amounts to 714800 l.

We hear, that a new Scheme is actually formed, and in all probability will have the intended Effect, for quelling of Tumults, and preventing them Years as the late Riotous.

We hear, that on Tuesday Se'nnight William Neal, Francis Garner and William Seone, Three of the Aldermen of St. Albans, in the County of Hertford, were taken up by Warrants from Sir Littleton Powis, one of his Majesty's Judges of the Court of King's Bench, when Edmund Aylward (who was lately convicted of Forgery) the Town Clerk of the said Borrough, and one Hardaway were bound into Recognizances for their appearing at the next Assizes and Goal Delivery for the said County, to plead to an Indictment of wilful Perjury found against each of the said Aldermen last Assizes.
